

See Inside the House Where Marilyn Monroe and Arthur Miller Got Married

The Westchester County home could be yours for $1.675 million.

by SAM DANGREMOND AUG 2, 2017

In 1956, Marilyn Monroe and playwright Arthur Miller wed at a French Country-style residence in Westchester County, and now the home with an illustrious past is on the market.

The four-bedroom house, which is listed for $1.675 million with Houlihan Lawrence, is directly across from the sixteenth hole of the Waccabuc Country Club in Waccabuc, New York, about 50 miles north of Manhattan. Scroll down for a look inside.

1

Monroe and Miller were married at the White Plains courthouse in a four-minute ceremony, and they held their reception here.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

The home, built in 1948, belonged to Miller's Hollywood agent, Kay Brown, who hosted the 25-person affair in 1956.

The property is 4.16 acres.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

The pool house next to the 22-by-48-foot pool includes kitchen and cabana.

Inside, many of the architectural details remain.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

The parquet floors, French doors, leaded windows, and European-style fireplaces are original, and the living room has floor-to-ceiling windows.

4

The house is 4,291 square feet.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

5

Here's one of four bedrooms.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

6

Bright colors are all over the house.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

7

So it feels light and airy.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

8

A first-floor guest suite has its own side entrance.

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE

9

It could all be yours!

HOULIHAN LAWRENCE